The Interior Design Calendar

The design fairs, festivals and events worth knowing about from September 2026 through August 2027.

- I. Fairs
- II. Design weeks

A year of design. One guide.

A year of design, in one place.

Paris. London. Tokyo. Shanghai. Milan. Melbourne. Copenhagen.
Chicago.

The design calendar gets crowded quickly.

We created a shorter list: the fairs, festivals and design weeks we think are genuinely worth knowing about over the year ahead.

Some are for sourcing. Some are for discovering what is next. Some are simply worth experiencing.

You don't need to attend them all.

You just need to know what's happening.

Overleaf: the whole year at a glance, then each event in turn.

WHY IT MATTERS

Maison&Objet is one of the major international meeting points for furniture, decoration and lifestyle, with a strong focus on residential interiors, objects, lighting and sourcing.

At the same time, Paris Design Week takes design into the city through showrooms, galleries, installations and exhibitions.

Together, they make September one of the best times of the year for a design-focused trip to Paris.

ACCESS

Maison&Objet is trade only. Paris Design Week includes many public events.

TICKETS

Maison&Objet €70 · Paris Design Week free / individual events may vary

Start the year in Paris.

One trip, two very different ways to experience design.

WHY IT MATTERS

London Design Festival spreads across London through design districts, showrooms, installations, exhibitions, talks and special projects.

It is particularly useful for creative research: less about finding everything under one roof, more about seeing how designers, artists, architects and brands are thinking.

ACCESS

Many events are free. Individual exhibitions and fairs may require separate tickets.

TICKETS

Mostly free · some individual events may be ticketed

WHY IT MATTERS

High Point is one of the most important working markets for American interior designers.

The experience revolves around furniture showrooms, product launches, vendor meetings and trade relationships.

For US residential designers, it is less about watching design from a distance and more about building the supplier network used in everyday projects.

ACCESS

Trade only. Professional registration required.

TICKETS

Free with qualified buyer online pre-registration · $30 onsite processing fee

WHY IT MATTERS

Dutch Design Week is less about finished furniture and more about what design might become.

Across Eindhoven, designers explore materials, manufacturing, sustainability, technology and experimental approaches to objects and spaces.

Think of it as creative research rather than a sourcing trip.

WHY IT MATTERS

Salone del Mobile is one of the most influential furniture and design events in the world.

But the fairgrounds are only half the story.

During Milan Design Week, showrooms, palazzos, galleries, courtyards and unexpected spaces across the city become part of the programme.

Furniture, lighting, materials, installations, emerging designers and global brands all arrive in Milan at once.

Save the dates. Keep designing.

The best design events are the ones that give you something to bring back to your own work: a new material, a new maker, a new idea, or simply a different way of seeing things.

See you somewhere on the design calendar.

Event dates, programmes, registration requirements and ticket information may change.
Always check the official event website before booking travel.
